This is so excellently constructed and laid out. (Is Anuar an attorney? Hope so because you need one right now.) It seems to force your sisters to admit what they've done, play by the rules from now one or pay serious consequences if they choose a different path. If they believe they are so correct in their, for example, probate information, let them hire their own lawyer (and pay for it) to dispute you. They won't. Whichever way this pans out, Eric, you'll have your mom's truth and that's all that's important.

As we speak, I'm still waiting for my new lawyer, whom I've never met, to give me a new Will. I want to sign it before I go into surgery, especially since they are telling me I'm a surgery risk. As it stands now, Cam and my brother are still in the old Will and will inherit all I own. So I know how you feel to some extent.

You're doing the right thing in the right way. Your mom knows that so just keep going. Your "family" is behind you 100%.

Much love,
Kathy (F2)
