Fahed Sayegh v. Nuha Sayegh, Los Angeles Superior Court Case No. 25PDFL0144

Nuha,

This message serves as formal notice that you must immediately preserve all evidence relating to the incidents described below, including any conduct I believe constitutes violations of court orders and/or unlawful access to my devices and communications.

1) Unauthorized taking/access of phone; privileged/private communications

On or about December 23, 2025, while I was asleep at 1226 Sonoma Drive, I discovered that my iPhone was accessed without my consent. I found screenshots saved on my device that appear to have been created from content on my phone, including (a) communications between my attorney and me, and (b) private communications between me and your mother.

I have evidence that you took the phone from Jordan while Jordan had possession of my phone at the time, and that you then accessed communications on the device without authorization.

2) Deletion / missing message history
I also discovered that substantial portions of the message history between you and me (accumulated over years) were deleted or missing. I did not authorize any deletion.

3) Preservation demand (no deletion / no wiping / no alteration)
You are instructed to preserve all potentially relevant evidence immediately. This includes, without limitation:

A. Devices, accounts, and backups
- Any phones (old or new), tablets, computers, external drives, SIM cards, and storage devices in your possession, custody, or control
- Any Apple IDs / iCloud accounts, Google accounts, cloud storage, and device backups (including iCloud backups and any computer-based backups)
- Any carrier account records, device logs, and any device location history (if enabled)

B. Communications and records
- All SMS/iMessage threads, call logs, voicemails, emails, and direct messages between you and me
- Any communications involving our children (including Jordan and Mia), your mother, DCFS, law enforcement, attorneys, or any third parties that relate in any way to me, my devices, my messages, or alleged “recordings”
- All screenshots, screen recordings, photos, videos, notes, drafts, and recordings referencing or derived from my phone or my communications

C. Prohibited actions
Do not delete, wipe, factory reset, “clean,” overwrite, trade in, discard, or alter any device or account that may contain relevant data, and do not instruct anyone else to do so.

4) No further access to my devices or private communications
Do not access, handle, copy, photograph, or use any of my devices or private communications again for any purpose.

Please confirm in writing that you will preserve the evidence described above.
